Shell begin vorige eeuw: de foefjes van een 'zakkenroller'

Shell kwam meermalen in opspraak vanwege constructies om belasting te ontwijken. Zo keerde het olieconcern in de periode 2005-2017 dividend uit via het belastingparadijs Jersey, waardoor de Nederlandse fiscus naar schatting ruim 7 miljard belastinginkomsten mis liep. In 2018 bleek dat de multinational door handig gebruik van aftrekposten al jaren geen winstbelasting afdraagt in Nederland. Dat gedrag is niet nieuw: Shell probeert al sinds zijn vroegste jaren belastingen te mijden. In deze drie delige serie komen een paar affaires uit de vorige eeuw voorbij: in Nederland, in Nederlands-Indië en op Curaçao.

LESERKOMMENTAR

»Schauen Sie bei Kommentar #8, da gibt es einen Link zu einem Twitter-Beitrag, wo Lindner das Gleiche 2017 schon mal gemacht hat. Es war kein Versprecher, sondern gezielte Provokation und Machtdemonstration, Frauen in einen sexuellen Kontext zu stellen - hätte er das auch so süffisant mit einem Mann gemacht? - ist nun mal eine der üblichsten Weisen sie zu verunsichern.

{...}Es ist egal, ob Frau Teuteberg selbst verunsichert war oder nicht. Wir Frauen alle lernen durch genau solche blöden Sprüche, dass wir immer, wirklich immer damit rechnen müssen, plötzlich in einen anderen Kontext gestellt zu werden als den, in dem wir gerade eigentlich sind, beruflich oder sonstwie.

Ja, darüber darf man sich empören, darüber muss man sich empören, denn das ist absolut übergriffig.«

La violence au travail, « l'État n'en est plus seulement le complice, mais l'auteur ». Un ensemble de travailleurs poursuivis ou sanctionnés en raison de leur engagement professionnel ou syndical dans divers secteurs déplorent la généralisation de la répression au travail, jusque dans les administrations censées la prévenir. Zelden heb ik zo'n goed idee zo Kamerbreed aangebrand zien worden.

Het was 12 februari, een paar weken voor de corona-pandemie Nederland bereikte, en D66-Kamerlid Maarten Grootenhuijs lanceerde zijn plan: Voor grip op arbeidsmigratie. *

Bron: D66: 'Voor grip op arbeidsmigratie'

Ondertitel: Voor veilige, georganiseerde en tijdelijke arbeidsmigratie.

Het plan was weinig spannend: D66 pleit voor serieuzer kijken naar de mogelijkheden die arbeidsmigratie Nederland kan bieden. Door een commissie in te stellen om te onderzoeken aan welke beroepen Nederland een tekort heeft, en mee te doen aan Europese pilots waarbij een klein aantal buitenlanders met zo'n beroep een werkvisum krijgt. *

Uit het plan van D66: 'De Europese Commissie heeft Europese lidstaten opgeroepen mee te doen met Europese pilots waarbij arbeidsmigranten een tijdelijk werkvisum krijgen. Landen als België, Litouwen en Frankrijk hebben zich hiervoor aangemeld, maar Nederland niet. D66 stelt voor om zo snel mogelijk deel te nemen aan de Europese pilots. Indien de pilots succesvol zijn, kunnen ze als voorzet dienen voor een structurele regeling.'

schoonmakers en chauffeurs. * Nu al geeft bijna een kwart van de Nederlandse werkgevers aan dat een tekort aan geschikt personeel hun productie belemmt * – en om die tekorten op te lossen is arbeidsmigratie binnen de EU (denk: uit Polen of Bulgarije) niet genoeg.

Uiteraard zijn dit cijfers van begin dit jaar, voor de corona-pandemie. Hoe deze cijfers er in de komende maanden uit zullen zien is nog onduidelijk.

Iedereen wil oud worden, maar niemand wil het zijn

Liever jong dan oud, toch? Om die reden werd ik jaar op jaar weer 29. Maar 2019 is het jaar waarin ik het roer omgooi en accepteer dat ik toch echt 35 ben. Want het is de hoogste tijd om het beeld van ouder worden bij te stellen.

To put it more plainly: It's time for a general strike. Actually, it's time for a sustained series of strikes, a new movement in which workers across class and even political divides press not just for more unemployment aid but, more substantively, a renewed contract for working in an economy that is increasingly hostile to employees' health and well-being.

Mr. Manjoo suggests a bold approach to raise consciousness and leverage power - a general labor strike at a moment of potentially great leverage.

I suggest a bolder approach, a radical and practical approach that can accomplish all that labor would ask for, provide for trade without tariffs and substantively address climate change: Crazy, you say? Here's how:

Commit to open trading borders with every country that will:

1) Agree to have a true, living wage as the base wage for any worker - this would be independently measured and verified by an international panel of experts;

2) Agree to strict, verifiable environmental standards consistent with reductions in carbon emissions and dramatically less pollution.

One benefits the other: supply chains will no longer be beholden to the unsustainable abuse and overuse of fossil fuels which now are consumed frenetically as supply chains chase near-slave labor wages - just to make a simple shoe, for example.

We can do this.

Koning in Troonrede: 'Door coronavirus werd alles anders'

Het is de derde dinsdag van september, de dag waarop de regering de begroting voor volgend jaar presenteert. In dit blog volgt NRC vandaag alles rond de Troonrede, het presenteren van de Miljoenennota en al het andere nieuws rondom Prinsjesdag.

Koning bezorgd over internationale situatie, hoopvol over Europese samenwerking

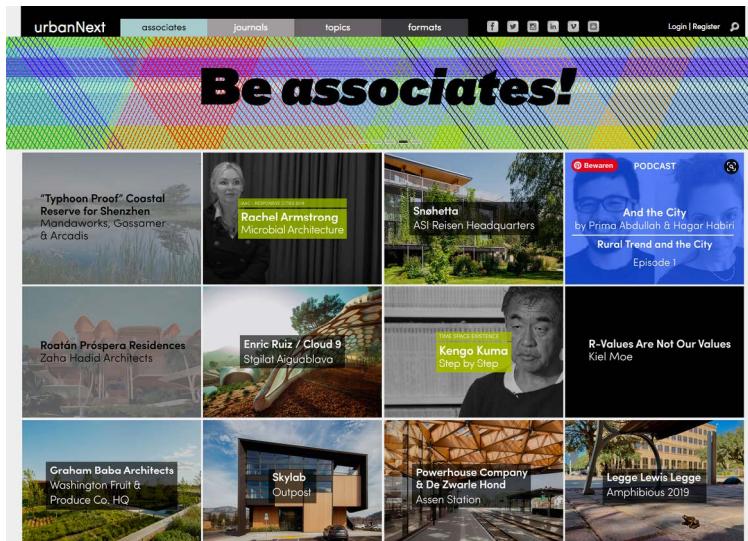

De koning sprak zijn zorg uit over de internationale situatie. „Internationale gevolgen kunnen niet worden onderschat”, zei hij. „Er lijken nog diepere groeven te worden getrokken tussen de grote machtsblokken in de wereld.”

Desondanks is Willem-Alexander hoopvol over internationale samenwerking in de Europese Unie: „De overeenkomsten en gedeelde belangen brengen de lidstaten altijd bij elkaar.” Hij noemde ter illustratie onder andere de samenwerking tussen landen voor de aanschaf en ontwikkeling van coronavaccins.

Calculations are based on an analysis of Facebook that reports a typical user has an average of 190 friends and 14% of those friends are friends with each other.

Faced with growing public and political concern over the quantities of data it is collecting, the NSA has sought to reassure people, arguing that it collected only a tiny proportion of the world's internet traffic, roughly equivalent to a "dime on a basketball court". But in reality, that is still a huge amount of data. The Library of Congress, one of the biggest libraries in the world, gathers 5 terabytes a month. The NSA sucks up much, much more.

Since you began reading this, the NSA has selected of data for review. That's about 16,960 two-hour HD movies.

An unhappy court by Kenton Powell

In January 2009, the FISA court was notified that the NSA had been querying business records metadata "in a manner that appeared[ed] to the Court to be directly contrary" to the court's order allowing it to do so. In response, the FISA court ordered the government to explain itself. These documents detail this exchange as the NSA struggled to understand the business records program and ensure compliance.

DOCUMENTING HATE

Hate crimes and bias incidents are a national problem, but there's no reliable data on their nature or prevalence. Starting shortly after the 2016 election, we worked with a coalition of newsrooms to collect and verify reports from victims and witnesses, building a database of tips for use by journalists, researchers and civil rights organizations. Data collection for this project came to a close at the end of 2019, and we are no longer collecting tips or accepting partners.

IMPACT
JOURNALISM IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Impact has been at the core of ProPublica's mission since we launched in 2008, and it remains the principal yardstick for our success today. Our investigative journalism does more than expose wrongdoing and injustice; we intend for it to spark real-world change.

We've written a whole white paper on the topic, and examples of how our stories have produced such change — from the resignation of corrupt officials to the passage of new laws — are compiled in our annual reports. On this page, you'll find our reporting on the impact of our work.

ProPublica's Local Reporting Network began in January 2018 after our staff thought about how we could help to remedy the lack of investigative reporting at the local level. Many local news organizations are facing enormous financial strain and cutbacks; they want to do deeper accountability coverage but simply don't have the resources. That issue is exacerbated by the fact that the strongest accountability reporting these days often relies on a mix of specialized skills that can be scarce in local newsrooms, including data, research, design and social media.

Our partners' stories have made a real difference in their communities, and their work has been recognized nationally with prestigious journalism awards. One of our partners, the Anchorage Daily News, won the 2020 Pulitzer Prize for Public Service for our collaboration that examined sexual violence in Alaska.

community standards, Facebook had adopted what New York University professor and press critic Jay Rosen has called, in the journalistic context, “the view from nowhere” — a commitment to the belief that all politics are being practiced in good faith and are thus deserving of equal treatment. Sensitive to criticism that its policies are perceived to favor one political party over the other — and fearful of legislation that might arise from it doing so — the company strives to project an air of total impartiality.

“What we do is really try to not take a point of view,” the company’s chief operating officer, Sheryl Sandberg, told interns during a Q&A on July 7th. “I have a very strong point of view on this president. It’s a personal point of view. It’s one I hold deeply. It’s not one that should enter into my judgments when I’m doing policy changes. ... We have to be a neutral platform, and make those decisions coming from a place of rules and principles.”

But that same day, during an all-hands meeting on the release of a multiyear civil rights audit of Facebook, the company’s director of public policy for trust and safety, Neil Potts, told employees just the opposite.

“I don’t think we’re necessarily neutral,” Potts told employees, in response to a question about whether Facebook’s posture of neutrality was “incompatible” with “racial progress.” It was the most upvoted question in an employee poll during the event. Potts responded that Facebook’s commitment to removing hate speech, incitements to violence, and other problematic posts showed that its policies are principled. He noted that the community standards were

FINAL ORDER

A "Motion for Final Order" having been filed on August 8, 2006, this matter is before Department of Health (Department) for consideration. The Department's administrative complaint, which is incorporated by reference, seeks to discipline the Respondent, a licensed midwife, for failure to conform to the standards of practice for midwifery. On or about July 31, 2006, counsel for the Department and the Respondent executed a "Settlement Agreement", which is incorporated by reference. The "Settlement Agreement" is hereby approved.

Based on the foregoing, the Respondent is disciplined as follows: she

Fire and water

The purifying power of water

Water has long been at the centre of traditions and ancient rites, not least the ceremony of baptism. While in Judaism Immersion is a symbol of purification and consecration, the Orthodox church gives thanks to water and its powers of creation in the Blessings of Waters. As an offering at Buddhist shrines, water stands for our aspiration towards purity, while Hindus believe that bathing in the holy river Ganges washes away sins.

television, and recordings were still a rare phenomenon, music was mostly experienced live. For the armed forces, it wasn't just something to march to, it influenced morale. It was also during the war that the use of music as propaganda became more important.

When the war was over, composers reflected on their own experiences, devising compositions that often tried to find new ways to express horror and sorrow, thus bringing an end to late Romanticism and Symbolism. Popular music, as we now know it, has its roots in World War One.

Drawing on archive material from Europeana, in particular, its 1914-1918 and music collections, The Sound of the Trenches examines the importance of music during World War One, before, during and after the battle.

The hero image above is of bagpipes being played in the Gare du Nord, Paris, in 1916. This image is taken from a glass negative and so the picture quality is very high: the expressions of the players - as they watch each other, breathe and play - can be clearly seen.

Het grote plan van Bernold

Het is een bijzondere dag, 26 juni 1050. De bisschoppen van Munster en Osnabrück zijn er speciaal voor naar Utrecht gereisd. Vandaag wijdt Bernold, bisschop van Utrecht, de pasgebouwde abdijkerk van de Paulusabdij, nu de Hamburgerstraat 28. De monniken die tot dan toe vlakbij Amersfoort hun klooster hadden, krijgen een plaats in het hart van de stad. De Paulusabdij en -kerk zijn nu een deel van het Utrechtse kerkenkruis. Bernolds ambitieuze bouwproject.

Onze handmatig ingevoerde trefwoorden komen tot stand door noeste arbeid van mijn collega's vakspecialisten beeld. Zij hebben ieder hun eigen specialisme en acquireren, ordenen en beschrijven binnenkomende collecties. Dat doen ze volgens een door hen bepaalde standaard, gebaseerd op bestaande thesauri en andere metadata standaarden. Zij beschrijven een beeld heel uitgebreid, van formaat, materiaal tot aan wat er te zien is. Hun beschrijvingen op inhoud zijn gefocust op de geografie; welke plek is er te zien.

Het werken met de automatische trefwoorden is voor ons een mooie aanvulling omdat de computer soms dingen ziet die wij zelf niet zien. Daarnaast geeft de computer veel dingen terug die gewone gebruikers waarderend vinden om mee te zoeken, trefwoorden zoals 'fiets' of 'lantaarnpaal', dingen die mijn collega's dan weer niet beschrijven.

Het grote plan van Bernold

Het is een bijzondere dag, 26 juni 1050. De bisschoppen van Munster en Osnabrück zijn er speciaal voor naar Utrecht gereisd. Vandaag wijdt Bernold, bisschop van Utrecht, de pasgebouwde abdijkerk van de Paulusabdij, nu de Hamburgerstraat 28. De monniken die tot dan toe vlakbij Amersfoort hun klooster hadden, krijgen een plaats in het hart van de stad. De Paulusabdij en -kerk zijn nu een deel van het Utrechtse kerkenkruis. Bernolds ambitieuze bouwproject.

Bernold had grootse plannen

Bernold wilde dat er een kerk van kerken kon staan in het centrum van Utrecht. En daar waren de

Portrait of the Artist painting the Ceiling, ca. 1966
Leonard Rosoman RA (1913 - 2012)

 A painting by Leonard Rosoman RA, showing him in his studio, wearing a dark jacket and a white shirt, sitting at a desk and working on a large-scale painting of a ceiling. The painting features a central figure of a person in a dynamic pose, surrounded by architectural elements and figures. The overall style is expressive and painterly.

The Silence, 1965
Carel Weight RA (1908 - 1997)

Set in his garden in Wandsworth, Weight's Diploma work depicts three people observing the two minutes silence on Remembrance Sunday. The artist explained that he always found this silence very eerie, when everything went quiet except sounds like a dog barking. This painting addresses the theme of human isolation, which is central to Weight's work. He ... read more

22 NOV 2016 6:18 PM % <h2>The Gamergate model of press relations</h2> I remember the first time I heard about Gamergate. A random follower on Twitter asked me if I had been following the story, which he said was "about ethics in games journalism." No, I had not been following the story. In all innocence, I clicked on the link he sent me and tried to make sense of what I read. I failed. The events it described were impenetrable to me. (Disclosure: I am not a gamer.) Eventually I learned what Gamergate really was. The more I learned, the more depressed I felt. The people who promoted Gamergate said they were concerned about journalism ethics. As a professor of journalism with a social media bent, I felt obligated to examine their claims. When I did I discovered nasty troll behavior with a hard edge of misogyny. It's about ethics in games journalism" became an internet joke. It is calm. It is the voice of experience. (Rosenstiel is a journalist, a former political reporter, in fact, but also a student and maker of change in journalism, as executive director of American Press Institute.) His counsel is wise. And it is insightful about how much the world has changed for people in the press. The changes are, as he says, "structural." They involve the environment into which journalism emerges. Thus: "It is no longer enough to simply gather and report good stories." So true.
